TOWN COUNCIL AFTER POLICE

Gettysburg Borough Fathers Threaten to Discharge Both Gordon and O'Riley if they Do not Attend to Business.

The Gettysburg police were the point of attack by the Town Council at an adjourned meeting held on Friday evening. Before the discussion was over a motion was passed threatening the dismissal of both officers Gordon and O'Riley if better attention is not given to their duties. The discussion was brought on by the following communication:

To the City Council,
I prefer charges against Chief of Police Gordon for neglect of duty and not enforcing the ordinance preventing the running of vehicles, wagons and push carts on the pavements in the borough of Gettysburg as it is injurious to the sidewalks and the pedestrians crossing the same.

Yours truly,
Frank Shade.

The communication was referred to the Burgess. It was implied in Council meeting that Mr. Shade's communication was the result of some personal difference between him and Chief Gordon.

The next attack on the police was brought about by Councilman Kitzmiller telling of the raid by Chief Gordon on a crap game last Saturday night and then failing to make any arrests. Mr. Kitzmiller said he could not see the idea in raiding such a game if the offenders were not punished, and spoke very strongly about officers knowing who were violating the law in this manner and not laying information against them.

Then came up the matter of the police not enforcing the law regarding the speed limit for automobiles in Gettysburg. Several of the councilmen characterized their neglect of duty in this matter in no uncertain terms. The practice of fast running was declared to be very general in town and a great source of danger to pedestrians. It was even stated that parents hesitate to send their children to school on account of the rate at which automobiles are allowed to go over the borough streets. It was also stated by borough attorney Wible that the police had been given a demonstration of how fast twelve miles an hour was and that they were in a position to lay information if they wished to.

The discussion resulted in a motion being made by Mr. Kitzmiller and seconded by Mr. Butt that the police be instructed to apprehend all violators of the speed limit for automobiles within the borough limits and upon failure to observe directions their appointments as police be revoked and others appointed in their places. The motion was carried.

The next matter regarding the police was the question of the misuse of the clock registry system. It was installed some months ago at considerable expense, then put out of commission and later repaired at additional expense. It is not being operated at the present time.

STREET AND ALLEY EXTENSIONS
The committee appointed at the last meeting of council to attend to the matter of ordaining all streets and alleys to the borough limits divided the town into four sections for the purpose and recommended the following extensions:

Section north of Chambersburg street and Springs avenue and west of Carlisle street: alley in rear of Broadway, Broadway, alley between Broadway and Lincoln streets, Lincoln street, cross streets from intersection of Reynolds and Buford streets; alley in rear of lots between Buford street and Springs avenue.

Section east of Carlisle street and north of Hanover street: alleys in rear of lots on Carlisle street and Lincoln street, Lincoln street, Stevens street, Water street, cross streets and alleys between Lincoln and Stevens streets, between Water and Stevens streets, and between Hanover street and the Western Maryland railroad, Broadway.

Section south of Chambersburg street and Springs avenue and west of Baltimore street: alleys between Springs avenue and Baltimore street, extensions of Reynolds, Howard and Hay streets south; cross streets and alleys between the same extensions of High and Breckinridge streets south; cross streets and alleys at right angles to Washington street.

Section south of Hanover and east of Baltimore streets: streets and alleys between Hanover and East Middle street extended.

It was pointed out that in several cases recent purchases of land by the government would not allow the entire extension of streets and alleys. A motion, made by Mr. Kitzmiller and seconded by Mr. Armor, was passed providing that the committee be instructed to plot and ordain the streets

CONDITIONS ARE ALARMING

All Accommodations for Visitors at Time of Monument Dedication now Taken and Hundreds of Applications are coming Daily.

One hundred and fifty applications for boarding and lodging during the time of the monument dedication on September 27 and the days immediately preceding and following, were received by the entertainment committee this morning. Most of these asked for accommodations for two and four persons.

Friday one hundred such requests were received and Thursday about seventy-five. Friday's requests consumed what was left of the accommodations so that at the present time there are between three and four hundred people for whom no boarding nor lodging can be assigned.

It is expected that next week will see daily mails of hundreds of letters asking for such accommodations and the town will have more than it can possibly attend to unless extraordinary measures are taken to provide stopping places for the thousands of visitors many of whom will stay here for several days.

The entertainment committee requests that all persons who are willing to take boarders and lodgers during the big time will at once let them know of their desire to accommodate visitors next week. It is believed that many persons who are not in the habit of doing this will do it this time, not specially for the money to be gained but for the benefit of the town and the comfort of the visitors.

This evening the entertainment committee will be in the room of the Retail Merchants' Association, number 203 First National Bank Building, from six until eight o'clock and request all such persons to call there.

and alleys south of West Middle street.

LIGHT COMPANY ATTACKED

The light committee reported an inspection of the Tungsten lamps over town as showing that many of the lamps are not in condition and some not burning. They also stated that Mr. Turner had said lamps had been ordered but had not yet arrived. On motion of Mr. Codori, seconded by Mr. Shearer, the Borough Attorney was instructed to look into the matter of the Gettysburg Lighting Company's bond in view of their alleged negligence in carrying out the light contract.

Upon the presentation of a petition from citizens living on Steinwehr avenue asking for a crossing between the Patterson and Horner properties a motion providing that the Highway Committee have same constructed was made by Mr. Butt, seconded by Mr. Armor and carried.

On motion of Mr. Butt, seconded by Mr. Codori, it was decided that a fire plug be placed on York street about midway between the last fire plug and the borough limits.

The amendment to the ordinance providing for the franchise of the trolley extension from McSherrytown was passed with a few changes which did not alter the effect of the amendment.

Mr. Butt reported regarding the arrangement of the alley in the rear of East Middle street extended that Danner Buehler would make no concessions and that Martin Winter had made two propositions, either that he would give twelve feet for an alley to begin two feet east of the Buehler line or that viewers be put on six feet of his land and six feet of the land belonging to Mr. Buehler. The committee was continued.

Mr. Wible called the attention of Council to the manner in which some porches, within the provisions of the borough ordinances governing same, obstruct the sidewalks. No action was taken.

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—So closely did Frank and George Elliott, twins, resemble each other that the body of one of them, a suicide, is lying at the morgue, with relatives unable to say which of the brothers it is.

Elliott killed himself by jumping in front of a train. When the body was taken to the morgue a sister was summoned.

She identified it as that of her brother, but said that she could not say positively whether it was Frank or George. Other relatives were also unsuccessful in making positive identification.

The Elliott family drifted apart and the whereabouts of Frank Elliott is not known to other members of the family.

The man who killed himself was known as George Elliott.

Two months ago Mrs. Knesbeck had the boy arrested on a vagrancy charge. When brought into court he was thin and emaciated and weighed only 120 pounds. Witnesses testified that the mother starved him, and the judge, dismissing the case, gave the boy into the care of a friend. Friday young Knesbeck was again brought into the court and weighed. He tipped the scales at 154 pounds.

The judge returned the boy to his mother, with a warning to give him plenty of food.

OYSTERS ARE LAZY.

They Spend Practically the Whole of Their Lives in Beds.

Just like confirmed invalids, oysters spend their lives in beds. The principal parts of an oyster are salt water and a handsome stomach.

Every oyster has a mother-of-pearl lined overcoat with the moss on the outside. But a Waldorf-Astoria oyster gathers no moss.

Oysters, as a rule, keep their mouths

LEADERS CALL ON ROOSEVELT

Colonel Spends Busy Day in Outlook Office.

DEFENDS HIS NEW CREED

Declares He Is Not Talking Revolution or Making Appeal to Mob Rule in His "New Nationalism."

New York, Sept. 17.—"All that I have to say, gentlemen, is that I have had a fairly busy day."

Thus spoke the contributing editor to a group of reporters who asked him the meaning of the day's activities. Here was no exaggeration. To the Outlook office there had streamed all day long the leaders of the so-called progressive movement in this state for the purpose of consultation, rehearsal and the tuning of their voices to the keynote for song before the battle as given out by Leader Roosevelt. Insurgents in soft black hats tramped down the corridors; reformers in silk hats and Prince Alberts brushed shoulders on elevators with those on the fence and in a state of nervous excitement.

Lloyd C. Griscom, Controller Predecessor and Otto H. Bannard were another group that held the contributing editor's ear for a long while. When they came out they were all mysteriously silent. "Were you discussing literature?" they were finally asked, and they said that they thought they were to amend that statement later on to "political situation in general."

Colonel Roosevelt said that he was not talking revolution in declaring his new political creed. Neither is he making an appeal to mob rule. In a staunch defense of his doctrine of "new nationalism" he declared that he was merely urging the application of old moralities to modern conditions.

At the same time he replied with spirit to those who have been opposing him, and hotly denounced newspapers which, he said, attacked honest public men.

Colonel Roosevelt's address was delivered before a great crowd at the Suffolk county fair, at Riverhead.

"I have noticed a good deal of comment on my speech on 'new nationalism,'" he said. "All that 'new nationalism' means is the application of certain old time moralities to the changed conditions of the day."

"I wish to see greater governmental efficiency, because we have to deal with greater business efficiency. Simple laws are all that are necessary in small communities, where there is no big business and each man works for himself. When you get masses of wealth together and great corporations developing, conditions then become so changed that there must be an increase in governmental activity to control the wealth for business efficiency."

"I would not do any wrong to the great corporation, but I don't intend to rely only on the big corporation's good nature to see that the corporation doesn't do harm against us. I want to see such control of the wealth now for business uses as to favor the honest man who uses the wealth genuinely for the service of the public, and to make the dishonest man feel that he has to do what is right; and if he doesn't feel it we shall see to it that he does."

"That is my whole creed. That is all there is in it. There is no revolution in it. There is no appeal to mob rule."

"On the contrary, I recognize mob violence as an enemy of the public good just as much as lawless wealth. I am against the poor man who is guilty of the crime of violence, and when it is in my power I shall try to punish him for his misdeeds, just as whenever I have the power I will join with those that see to it that the corrupt man of wealth is good—not because he likes it, but because he has to be."

This morning the colonel takes a train for Syracuse, arriving there at about 2:30, makes a speech at the state fair and returns on the midnight train.

Kills Business Rival.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Louven V. Atkins, a proprietary medical manufacturer, was shot and killed in his office in the Marine building by Dr. James M. Rainey. Rainey withdrew from the company of which Atkins was president two months ago and started another firm with much the same name. According to Joseph Ingram, attorney for Rainey, mail claimed by the latter was frequently delivered to Atkins. The men quarreled about this it is said Dr. Rainey was arrested.

Many Subpoenaed for Packers Trial

Chicago, Sept. 17.—One hundred and fifty subpoenas for packers and employees of the big packing concerns were issued, returnable Nov. 1 for witnesses to be used by the government in the prosecution of the ten millionaire heads of the big beef concerns who were recently indicted for violation of the anti-trust law.

Word Liar Counts as First Blow.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17.—"Liar" is the first blow in a fight, according to Police Justice Crutchfield. The court fined W. T. Thorpe, a theater manager, $20 for applying the shorter and uglier word to a city electrician inspector, who had promptly knocked Thorpe down. The inspector was not placed under arrest.

Divinity Student Held For Girl's Death

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 17.—James J. Hill was seventy-two years old yesterday. "I'm feeling in good health," he remarked. Standing erect and his eyes shining brightly, he looked to be in splendid condition.

Mr. Hill was down at his office bright and early. Practically everybody else in the building uses the elevator, but seldom Mr. Hill. His mental energy demands physical exertion and he walks up and down the stairs to consult the various officials in charge of the different departments.

WILSON TO RESIGN OCT. 20

May Not Urge Immediate Acceptance of Resignation.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 17.—Dr. Woodrow Wilson, who was nominated for governor of New Jersey by the Democratic state convention, said that he would offer his resignation as the president of Princeton university to the board of trustees at its next meeting on Oct. 20.

It is understood that Dr. Wilson will not urge the trustees to accept his resignation immediately.

Telegrams have been pouring in on the Democratic nominee by the score. Dr. Wilson mentioned especially one from Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, his strongest rival for the nomination. He said it was couched in friendly terms and that he was glad to acknowledge it publicly.

Regarding the campaign, Dr. Wilson said that he does not expect to make a great many speeches. "The field to be covered," he said, "is not very large, unless I should go into the tariff, but I believe that national issues like the tariff will not be injected into the campaign. When running for governor of New Jersey one should run for governor."

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people trouble.

The forming of regular habits is most important and while endeavoring to form them the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is most valuable, as it is the only laxative which acts without disturbing the natural functions and without debilitating and it is the one laxative which leaves the internal organs in a naturally healthy condition, thereby really aiding one in that way. ## DRAWN INTO GRAFT PROBE

New York Congressman Got $500 Traction Money.

WAS THEN STATE SENATOR

Evidence Shows Street Railway Interests Contributed Thousands of Dollars to Both Political Parties.

New York, Sept. 17.—That George R. Malby, now a member of congress and formerly a state senator, who is the political boss of St. Lawrence county, received $500 of the money from the account of the traction interests which was deposited with Ellingwood & Cunningham, came out in the testimony before the legislative investigating committee.

Of this account only three items were traced to their goals, that of Malby for $500, that of the late S. Fred Nixon for $2000, and that of Senator Louis F. Goodsell for $2000. Malby is the leader of the district which Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., chairman of the investigating committee, represents in the assembly, and of various other districts in that part of the state.

Transferred on Books. The $500 to Malby was transferred on the books under the date of July 23, 1903. Alexander S. Hackley testified that he knew Malby, who was then senator, but that he had no business dealings with him and that he was not aware of this item of transfer any more than of any others in the account. In other words, it was simply a case of the passing of funds collected by the Street Railway Association of the State of New York, through G. Tracy Rogers, its president, through Ellingwood & Cunningham, its clearing house, by means of Hackley, the "medium," to a member of the legislature.

Almost as startling as this bit of testimony was the evidence of H. H. Vreeland, who took the stand for the first time. Vreeland, who was a member of the executive committee of the Street Railway Association from about 1895 to 1903, and at the same time president of the Metropolitan Street Railway company, the Metropolitan Securities company and other corporations, admitted under a rapid fire of questions from M. Linn Bruce, the committee's counsel, that there had been two sources of revenue of the association, the dues and assessments. He said, however, that the disbursement of the assessment fund was entirely in the hands of Rogers, and that he knew nothing of it save that it was used for political purposes, and, he thought, campaign contributions.

Gave to Both Parties. The only specific contributions to politics that the street railway magazine could remember that the Metropolitan had made was one of $25,000 to the Republican state organization in 1902-3, and one of between $17,000 and $18,000 to the Democratic state organization at the same time. He could not be positive as to the year, but thought the money was paid by him in October, by check, and at the suggestion of some indefinite person connected with the company. He said, however, that in his experience that company and all corporations paid contributions to all parties year by year.

I. C. RAILWAY GRAFT

Another Big Sensation Is Expected in a Few Days.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—The Illinois central railway graft scandal storm broke with renewed tempestuous fury. Frank B. Harriman, formerly general manager of the Illinois Central lines, who was arrested, was also charged with the road north of the Ohio river, had arranged to answer the charges of their former employees in a sensational manner.

It is expected that a general statement will be made in a few days which will throw much light on the dealings of a half dozen big railroads in the east.

STOKES CLAIMS NOMINATION

Says He Carried State by About 7000 For U. S. Senatorship.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 17.—Former Governor E. C. Stokes, of New Jersey, said that his advisers from sections of the state gave him a lead of 5000 to 7000 in the United States senatorship primary of last Tuesday.

Mr. Stokes said that he was confident these figures will not be materially changed by the official returns. He claims to have led in the voting in seventeen of the twenty-one counties of the state. Also he declares he feels confident that the choice expressed in the primary will be respected by the Republicans in the legislature next winter.

The opponents of Mr. Stokes in the primary were former Governor Frank L. Murphy and Congressman Charles N. Fowler.

TAFT'S ATTITUDE ON SECOND TERM

Will Respond to Call in 1912 if Country Wants Him.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 17.—President Taft's attitude toward a second term is substantially this: He isn't actively seeking a second term. He is devoting himself solely to the duties of his office and to the redemption of the pledges made in the Republican national platform. He has found the duties of his office exacting, if not irksome, but he hasn't said, as has been reported, that he was willing to step aside in 1912. On the contrary, the president will respond to a call for a second term if he is satisfied that his friends and the country want him. He has not thought of deserting his friends.

This is substantially the attitude that President Taft outlined to his supporters before he left Washington, and his mind has not changed. The president himself declined to comment on the reports that have been published of his willingness to stand aside in 1912, but his attitude is well known to his friends.

ACCUSES PREACHER

14-Year-Old Girl Alleges She Was Victim of Criminal Assault.

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 17.—Rev. J. H. Arnold, forty years old, a Holiness preacher, was arrested at Pulaski, charged with criminal assault upon Lizzie Collins, a fourteen-year-old girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Collins, of this city.

Arnold and his wife were on the train on their way to Radford. The train stopped not far from Pulaski and the little girl got away and ran back to Pulaski, where she told the chief of police the story of a vicious assault. Upon discovering that she had escaped, Arnold left the train and went back after her. When he appeared he was arrested.

A telephone message from Pulaski is to the effect that a special grand jury will try Arnold. He was here last week and induced the parents of the little girl to let him take her with him.

CHANLER'S GIFTS TO CAVALIERI

The Pre-Nuptial Agreement is Made Public.

BIG FIGHT IN NOW ON

Promised Opera Singer $20,000 a Year For Life and Gave Her Valuable Property in New York.

New York, Sept. 17.—The pre-nuptial agreement between Mme. Lina Cavalleri, the opera singer, and Robert Winthrop Chanler, the artist and former sheriff of Dutchess county, the terms of which have been the subject of so many widely divergent reports of disagreements between the scion of the old Astor family and the Italian diva, has been made public.

It was filed in the register's office by counsel for the singer.

The agreement was made on the last day of May, of this year, in Paris, between Mr. Chanler and the singer, whose first name is given as Natalina. It states that, whereas, a marriage was about to be solemnized between the two and that doubts might arise as to their mutual property rights, it was agreed that the property of each of them, both present and future, was to remain the separate property and under the sole control of each of them.

The agreement then recites that, in consideration of the said intended marriage and of the sum of $1, Mr. Chanler gives to Mme. Cavalleri "all those three farms, known respectively as Cole farm, Chowell and Benna farm, in Red Hook, New York, approximately 350 acres and subject to a mortgage of $6000."

The agreement further provides that Mr. Chanler turns over to Mme. Cavalleri the land and buildings in New York city situated in several parts of the city, comprising in all thirty pieces of property, and ends "and all other realty forming part of the share of the above named Robert Winthrop Chanler, of and in the estate of the late Mrs. Robert Delano, subject to a mortgage of $140,000."

The agreement provides further that Mr. Chanler agrees to pay the yearly sum of $20,000 to Mme. Cavalleri during her life time, by four quarterly installments of $5000 a quarter, the first of which shall be paid within thirty days from the marriage.

To secure the payment of the $20,000 yearly Mr. Chanler in the agreement gave his bride power to collect the amounts due if otherwise unpaid by him out of the money coming to him from the income of the Chanler estate trust fund; or if this money should prove insufficient, similar power was given to her to collect the balance from the income he receives through the New York Life Insurance and Trust company.

Further interesting revelations of "Sheriff Bob" Chanler's courtship of Mme. Lina Cavalleri were made by Oreste Cavalleri, brother of the famous singer. In a new interview he told how Chanler had tried to induce his bride to mortgage her property.

In this interview Cavalleri told for the first time why his sister waited for seven months before giving her suitor a definite answer to his oft-repeated proposal. He was told that the long delay revealed the element of calculation. He said:

"About Chanler there is one thing that I have not told you. When the bills kept coming in to him in Paris he tried to get my sister to do what he himself did, mortgage something whenever he wanted money. He is a spendthrift. Whenever he wanted money he said, 'Oh, well, I'll mortgage something,' until there was nothing left to mortgage."

"My sister refused to mortgage her house in Paris or her chateau, and he was incensed."

FOWLER IS BEATEN

Judge Runyon Nominated by Fifth New Jersey District For Congress.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 17.—Judge William N. Runyon, of Union City, was nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Fifth congressional district, defeating Charles N. Fowler, who is one of the most conspicuous anti-Cannon men in the present congress.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing the Taft administration. Previous to the convention the delegates caucused and Judge Runyon received 140 votes to 70 for Fowler. In the convention which followed the nomination of Runyon was made unanimous.

Railway Watchman's Strange Death.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—Benjamin Ebey, a Reading railway watchman, was struck by a train at Heckton Mills, near this city. He fell in front of a train, was run over and died soon after being admitted to the Harrisburg hospital. Ebey was fifty years of age and leaves a family.

Angered Bull Attacks Man.

Woodbury, N. J., Sept. 17.—Albert Souder, who works on the John P. Day farm, near here, had a tussle with a bull, in which his clothing was torn off and he was badly bruised. The animal attacked him in the barnyard, and Souder bided his time until an opportunity offered for his escape.

Not So Green.

"You city chaps think you are pretty smart, don't you?" drawled the farm hand. "Ever been to one of our spelling bees?"

"Never had the pleasure," responded the city boarder.

"Waal, by heck, you've missed a lot. Now our favorite catchword is 'ice.'"

"Why, that only has three letters. Why should the word ice be so popular?"

"Because it is easy to slip on. Ha, ha, ha!" —Chicago News.

A Half Solved Mystery

By MARIA L. COOPER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Despite the opposition of my parents and certain head shakings on the part of intimate friends, I persisted in my engagement to Edward Illsey. There was something about him beyond these warnings that made me uncomfortable. He would make an engagement to be with me during an evening, break it and give no satisfactory explanation. After he had done this several times I resolved the next time to corner him by forcing him to tell me where he had been. When that next time came round he claimed that between the hours of 8 and 11 he had been at home. Without his knowledge I asked his sister as to his whereabouts on the evening in question, and she told me that he had not been at home, but said he had been with me.

This convinced me that he was deceiving me, and I told him he must either make a clean breast of the matter or I would break our engagement. He took a solemn oath that he never left his home between 6 o'clock during the evening he was supposed to be with me and 9 o'clock the next morning. When I asked how that could be he told me that to tell would involve others whose acts he had no right to divulge.

Curiosity now became my dominant motive. I would have broken with my fiancé had it not been that I believed I could get his secret by remaining engaged to him, whereas if I sent him away I would never know it. I pretended to be very much hurt at his want of confidence in me, and he seemed equally put out that I did not feel assured his statement was true and because I should endeavor to force him to reveal a secret which involved others.

The result of a half hour's probing gave me the impression that he was connected with several persons of both sexes who were united by some secret bond, but that this bond was of an especial importance did not appear. It did not in any way explain how Edward could have been in the house for three hours one evening when he was supposed to be visiting me. And what had the events of these three hours to do with the persons whose secrets he would betray by making an explanation?

After a long period of questioning and waiting, questioning again and waiting again, I gave up trying to get the secret. I, however, applied one test before taking final action. I asked to be admitted to this coterie of which Edward was supposed to be a member. He said that I must be elected and the number was complete. By this time I knew that I should get no satisfaction, and since I was not minded to marry a man who had a secret from me I broke the engagement.

All this was a few months before the great earthquake when our city was destroyed. Among those who did not turn up after that dreadful calamity was my former fiancé. His house was one that fell at the first shock, and only one member of the family had had time to escape. This person said that Edward Illsey was not in the house at the time of the quake. When the debris was removed every body was found except him. This indicated that he had probably been killed elsewhere. But, though his friends kept track of all the bodies taken out, his was never found—at least not identified.

Very naturally I connected his mysterious disappearance with the reasons for which I had broken my engagement. If I had been puzzled before I was more puzzled now. A new development was that one of Edward's most intimate friends was among the missing, and his body was not found. There were other persons not accounted for, but the man mentioned was the only one I happened to know as one of his friends. This deepened the mystery for me, though for me alone, for I never revealed what Edward had told me, or, rather, what he had not told me.

One morning I took up a newspaper and saw an explanation of the mystery that was haunting me so persistently that I was beginning to break down under it. The paper contained an announcement that the lot on which I knew had stood the Illsey house had been purchased and the foundations taken out to make way for new ones. A space had been walled up, evidently by amateur masons, and covered with an arched brick roof, the entrance to which was an iron door. The door being forced, its latch was found to have been wedged by the earthquake so that it could not be opened. There had been entrance from without through a cellar door.

Inside this inclosure, which was furnished, were found five skeletons—three men and two women. On a table lay a note addressed "To Those Who Shall Find Our Bodies," stating that they were pinned in by what they supposed to be an earthquake and were starving to death. The only information as to the cause of their being there were the words, "Our secret dies with us."

I have alluded to this as an explanation. It was an explanation that threw me into a far greater state of curiosity than before. I am consumed day and night with a desire to know what could have been the object of this secret coterie.

Not So Green. "You city chaps think you are pretty smart, don't you?" drawled the farm hand. "Ever been to one of our spelling bees?" "Never had the pleasure," responded the city boarder. "Waal, by heck, you've missed a lot. Now our favorite catchword is 'ice.'" "Why, that only has three letters. Why should the word ice be so popular?" "Because it is easy to slip on. Ha, ha, ha!" —Chicago News.

SKELLY & WARNER

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

In having photographs taken for advertising cuts put a man on the job that understands such work. A poor picture of a good rooster is a mighty poor business booster.

When a friend asks you to view his flock don't say "It's rotten" even if such is the case. If you are superior invite him round and he'll see the difference. An upercut word is often absurd, and applied to chickens it stirs up the dickens.

Cabbage is an excellent green food for winter, and the trimmings are of ten secured free from the marketman. We get all we want free from the truckers in this vicinity, and they are glad to get rid of it.

In human as well as hen diseases the knowledge of prevention is more important than pill practice. Don't found your hope on dope. Count sanitary measures among your chief treasures.

When you supply moisture by placing water in your incubator fill the pan nearly full of sand and keep it wet. Sand is a better evaporating surface than water, and hatching eggs will lose 5 per cent less weight where it is used.

It must be remembered that eggs are perishable. After the first week they quickly deteriorate in hatchability, flavor and weight. Let it be remembered that people are getting more particular about their food every day, and this tendency must be catered to make it pay.

J. O. V. Wise, a farmer of Longmont, Colo., killed the grasshoppers on his acres with oil and gathered up 125 bushels to feed his chickens next winter. Oh, what a cinch!

Adobe soil containing very little grit, flocks on such ground must be supplied. Sharp crystal grit that does not wear smooth is best.

The York County Agricultural society of Pennsylvania added a new premium to its list this year by offering a prize for the best display of eggs. Let those fair associations that offer premiums for the biggest dog and stuffed skunks take notice.

Let New York and other eastern markets that knock at buying eggs by weight look at Frisco and then come up to date. Many of our western friends ceased to buy eggs by the dozen long ago; but, then, you know, Pop Penn and Dad Knickerbocker were always slow.

Missouri has again battled in and smashed another world's record to smithereens by raising a Holstein cow that gave 16,744 pounds of milk in six months. With all her poultry prestige she can't beat Philadelphia and Baltimore turning out fresh green quacks.

The conditions laid down by certain fair authorities for egg exhibits are these: Uniformity in size, color, cleanliness, freshness and flavor.

At the Y. M. C. A. poultry show, Portland, Ore., roosters were entered in a crowing contest. One cockadoodle crowed twelve times in ten minutes and won the prize. This nearly equals our congressional cockatorms.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL

Gettysburg People Have Found that This is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench. A little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A certain remedy for such attacks. A medicine that answers every call. Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific. Many Gettysburg people rely on it. Here is Gettysburg proof.

Mrs. Charles Gilbert, 128 W. Middle Street, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "My health was very poor as the result of disordered kidneys. I had but little appetite, could not sleep well and was subject to backache and headaches. Often I had dizzy spells and chills and I always felt worse when I caught cold. One of my relatives finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at the People's Drug Store. They proved to be all that was claimed for them, giving me prompt and permanent relief. I advise the use of this remedy in all cases of kidney complaint."

She Was Not to Blame.

A young social worker in Philadelphia who has written a little volume of essays on "Life's Problems," few of which she has ever faced, called upon a woman the other day who informed her that her husband had gone off on a terrible spree.

"Oh, I am so sorry," said the social worker. "He seemed to be doing so well. I can't understand it. Did he read my book do you think?"

"Oh, no, miss," said the woman reassuringly. "You ain't got no cause to worry. It wasn't that that set him going."

school, when, observing several children whispering together, the teacher held his hand upright in a warning manner, meaning thereby to impose silence, on which almost the whole school, in the midst of the sermon, shouted out, "Perpendicular!" to the amazement of the startled and bewildered bishop.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

A romance of army life in the Indian country in Indian fighting days! Lanier, the self-sacrificing hero who typifies Uncle Sam's military officers; Miriam, the sweet girl whose love he wins; Dora, the capricious little beauty who set a whole military encampment in a turmoil; Rawdon, young, misjudged, but honest, who was the rival of the evil officer Rafferty, a soldier of whom the service was well-rid—these are only some of the characters that General King has drawn in the thrilling settings in the far west of bygone days when the Apaches and the Sioux waged war on the "palefaces" in their last stand to save their hunting grounds. In this realistic narrative the humor compels laughter, the romance charms and the intrigue and tragedy thrill and grip the reader.

CHAPTER I.

THE sun was sinking low beyond the ford of the foaming Platte. The flag at the old fort on the neighboring height clung to the staff with scarcely a flutter, awaiting the evening salute of the trumpets and the roar of the sunset gun. The young girl dived restlessly about the vine covered porch of the roadside cottage. She laid the big blue curtain aside, a wistful, longing look in the dark and dreamy eyes. Ever since stable call she had hovered about that shaded nook, again and again searching the northward slopes and ridges. Rawdon should have been here at her side—Rawdon, whom she had not seen for three mortal days—Rawdon, whom she had never set eyes on before the 1st of April and whom now she looked upon as the foremost soldier of the regiment, when in point of fact he was but a private trooper, serving the first part of his first enlistment.

This girl of seventeen, in her dainty white frock, plumped herself dejectedly down on the top step with two very shapely, slender, slippered feet displayed on the second below.

And then of a sudden the tears were dashed away and the girl sprang to her feet. A blithe voice hailed her from within.

"Dey's comin', Miss Dora—two on 'em, at least—like enough to be twin brothers."

Dora flew light as a bird to the other end of the little porch and was gazing out through the honeysuckles with all her soul in her eyes.

Coming up the slope at easy canter rode a young officer, with broad brimmed hat and dusty field dress, alert, slender, sinewy, of only medium height and not more than twenty-five years, with a handsome, sun tanned, smiling face, and behind him came what Aunt Chloe, in her "darker" dialect had declared "the very spit of him"—a young trooper in similar slouch hat and dusty field dress, younger probably by three or four years, but to the full as alert and active, his face now all aglow with a light that was sweet for girlish eyes to see.

The leader swung his hat and blithely shouted as he curbed his eager horse. "Howdy, Miss Dora? Bless your heart, Aunt Chloe, I knew you'd have the buttermilk ready! No, Rawdon, I shan't dismount"—this to the young orderly, who had sprung from saddle. "Father home, Miss Dora?" he went on cheerily.

"Over at the stables, Mr. Lanier," was the smiling answer. Trooper Rawdon had instantly swung once more into saddle and was reining back to his place.

"Stables going yet? I thought it supper time. Colonel sent me ahead to find him. Three of E troop horses act like they'd been eating loco weed."

"Colonel Burton's always findin' some way of sendin' you in ahead, Marse Lanier," grinned Chloe. "Ah don't wonder dey says you can do any thing you like an' never get hauled up for it."

"You're a gossip, auntie," laughed Lanier. "Rawdon, you dismount and wait for Dr. Mayhew in case I miss him. Give him the colonel's message and say the squadron should be in by 7:30." And with a wave of his hand, he was off.

Then Chloe vanished opportunely. Dora, with glistening eyes and glowing cheeks, retreated within the shelter of the bowered porch. Then, bounding up the steps and turning with outstretched arms, thither Rawdon followed.

Ten minutes later at swift trot came a third horse and rider, the horse all that a cavalry horse should be in gait and build, the rider well high as marked in build and proportions. In front of the little cottage of the veterinary surgeon he hurriedly dismounted and strode, angling through the gate. Dora, her face paling, met him at the head of the steps.

He brushed by, turned sharp to his left, and in an instant the two men were face to face.

"Rawdon," spoke the newcomer, his tone curt, domineering, insolent, "what do you mean by letting an officer lead your horse to stables? Go you to yours at once! Take my horse, too, and groom him!"

Rawdon flushed to his forehead. "My orders were from Lieutenant Lanier, sergeant, and they were distinctly to stop here."

"Go you at once and do as I say," was the instant rejoinder, and the veins in the sergeant's face were swelled almost to bursting.

"Indeed, Sergeant Fitzroy," began the girl rebukefully, "those were Lieutenant Lanier's orders."

"Hang Lieutenant Lanier's orders! No strapping sub can give such orders in this regiment. How dare you delay there? Go you town skip, or I'll kick you through the—"

But now, with blazing eyes, Dora Mayhew threw herself in front of him. "If you raise hand or foot against Rawdon, Sergeant Fitzroy, it's the last time you come inside our gate. No, I'll not stand aside! Before you strike him you'll have to strike me!"

And then there Sergeant Fitzroy realized that the fears and forebodings of the past month were more than grounded. If angered before he was maddened now. Brushing his light form aside with one sweep of his powerful arm, he sprang forward at the young soldier's throat just as a tall, lean man with grizzled beard, but athletic build, bounded up the steps and caught his wrist.

"None of that in my house, Fitzroy," came the order, stern and compelling. "In God's name, what does this mean? And, still grasping the sergeant's arm, the speaker backed the raging Englishman against the wooden pillar and held him there.

"Let go, Mayhew!" raved the sergeant. "I've ordered that young rip to stables, and he refuses to go."

"He was ordered to stay, papa, until you came," protested Dora, her eyes ablaze. "Lieutenant Lanier—that man's superior officer—gave him the colonel's message to you."

"He was ordered to go by Lieutenant Lanier's superior, the officer of the day, whom I represent," was Fitzroy's answer, "and the longer he stays the worse 'twill be for him."

"No officer ever authorized you to come to my quarters and lay violent hands on a man behaving like a gentleman, which you are not," was the cutting rejoinder of the older man, and it stung Fitzroy to fresh fury. Was he,

left, and in an instant the two men were face to face.

"What do you think I ought to say to you for coming home so late—and in such a condition?" demands the lady of the house.

"Perish she thought!" gracefully replies the courteous husband. "Perish she thought! M' dear, surely you would not shoope I would ever shrink you ought to shay she shings I shrink you ought to shay!" Judge.

BEFORE YOU STRIKE HIM YOU'LL HAVE TO STRIKE ME!

the model rider of the regiment, to be braved like this and in presence of the girl he loved?

"Let go! You must, Mayhew!" he hissed through clinched teeth. "You have no authority. You are only a civilian. You can be broke and fired if I report this—outrage—and what I know. Let go!" he shouted, freeing himself by furious effort. "Now, you, Rawdon, come with me. No. Stop! Corporal Watts!" he shouted to a non-commissioned officer swinging up the pathway toward the guardhouse on the bluff, four men of the guard at his back. "Come here and take charge of this man. It's the order of the officer of the day."

Corporal Watts slowly descended the incline, then, obviously embarrassed at the presence of Dora Mayhew, demanded further information.

By this time Rawdon, pale and silent, was standing at the foot of the steps. Too well he and other young soldiers had learned to know the weight of Sergeant Fitzroy's spite. Two officers were coming swiftly around the corner of the corral, Lanier foremost.

"I say again, Corporal Watts, this man is to be taken in charge at once. It is Captain Curbit's order as officer of the day."

Just Stood Pat. Talk about being between two fires, a Camden man was aroused by his wife the other night, who said she thought a burglar was in the house and wanted papa to go downstairs and chase him. Papa promptly declined.

"What's the matter?" scornfully asked wife. "Are you afraid?"

"No," replied the old man, replacing his head upon the pillow. "But while I'm downstairs chasing the burglar you'll be going through my clothes, so it's about six in one and a half dozen in the other."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

TOO MUCH HOT AIR.

Well, of all the freaks you should have seen those hatched by a neighbor this season. Many had twisted trills like the picture, others just pipped the shell and struck fast, and, acting the good Samaritan, he helped them out, and from their appearance they surely needed it.

Some had one wing, others had legs of different lengths, some had cross bills or great eyes that glared in a menacing manner. But the majority were crooked, their heads and tails touching, their twisted toes bearing the air.

What he said is not in the dictionary, and what he wrote to that incubator manufacturer you will not find among his testimonials.

Thinking it might be ancestry, he ran to the coop and examined every chicken's toes, but found all straight. He concluded, after reading a city farmer's editorial, that moisture was needed and set his heavy incubator up in the damp cellar and ran it carefully for three more weeks and got zero.

The eggs were pipped, but that's all. They were full of twisted monstrosities, unassimilated yolks and blood.

We examined the eggs and machine and found that the thermometer had told him a lie—it had lied straight ahead for six weeks. The machine had run at 110 degrees, but the thermometer had registered only 103 degrees; hence freaks.

Too much hot air is bad anywhere.

Men Old at 35

One Million Baldheads who Thought Dandruff Wasn't Dangerous

In the United States and Canada today there are nearly a million men who at 35 can be put in the baldhead class.

When these men had thick vigorous hair, dandruff made its appearance.

That was the time to attack the enemy of mankind—the persistent little devil called a dandruff microbe, or germ that burrows deep down into the hair root and saps it of the vitality that is so essential to the hair.

Young men or any man, for that matter, beware of the dandruff germ; it is not a theory, but an actual condition that confronts you. That dandruff is caused by a germ, is proven beyond question. That this germ destroys the hair root is today a matter of common knowledge.

The People's Drug Store has the remedy that kills the dandruff germ. They guarantee it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back. It is called PARISIAN SAGE, and can be obtained at drug stores in every town in America—ask People's Drug Store for it. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle of Parisian Sage.
